That's great, thank you Julie.

We are just talking to DTSC today, and will see what they have in mind but presumably this would be in Los Angeles. Steve Calanog is our lead for communicating with them. So if Michael, Brian or Mike want to call Steve they certainly can.

Hi Harry,

OSPR will make Lt.'s Michael Horn, Bryan Golhofer, and Mike Kirchner available to help with ICS coaching. Michael and Bryan are located in SoCal – not sure where the coaching is needed, assumed it would be near the site. Who is their point of contact? We are also curious as to the time commitment anticipated?

Thanks,

Julie

Hi Harry.

I just arrived in Seattle for a week. I'm bringing in some of my folks from my team that can look at our depth chart and see who from OSPR can help out. Julie Yamamoto is acting administrator for the rest of the week and Yvonne will take over when she gets back from vacation this weekend.

Hi Tom, Todd and Paul,

Steve Calanog from my office has been asked by our Division Director to help support DTSC in establishing a sound ICS approach to managing the Exide cleanup. We are working with the DTSC management team and tomorrow with Matt Rodriguez and Grant Cope. We wanted to suggest looking within CA's State response resources for ICS coaches in particular as well as advice on setting up their organizational structure. Steve has already shared a classic ICS structure with them as a suggestion but we feel they could really use some in person guidance.

We were asked to identify some names so we wanted to nominate Todd and likely someone from OSPR, since you all have such vast experience. I am cc'ing Paul as well in case he can think of someone in CalEPA and even OES if you think they or CalFire could fulfill this role. Anyway we'd appreciate any ideas you may have.

Thanks!

Harry
